EVENING EDITION

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, NOVEMBER 18.

MACON FAIR.—A private telegram from our "heavy editor" states that there are [illegible]0,000 in attendance to-day at the Fair.

☞ Reading matter on every page.

Georgia News.

The Griffin Middle Georgian states that the residence of W. M. Blanton, Esq., was recently destroyed by fire. Loss, $4,000.

The hotels at the Indian Springs have been stripped of their surplus bedding for the Fair.

The editor of the Newnan Defender wants a circus in his city. He wants to shake with something else besides chills and fevers.

The Rome Southerner learns that Dr. [illegible]sey, of Baltimore, with Bishop Pierce, will attend the North Georgia Conference, at Rome, on the 8th.

The Augusta Chronicle states that Samuel Dunn had his arm caught in the carding machinery of the Augusta Factory, and so mangled as to require amputation.

The Athens Watchman learns that Mr. David Kilgore, of Walton county, raised the present year, on one acre of bottom, lying on Shoal Creek, seventy-four bushels of corn, without the use of fertilizers.

The Americus Courier says that Rev. G. A. Lofton, Professor in Furlow Masonic Female College, received a call from the Baptist Church, at Dalton, which has been accepted, and he will remove to that place in a few days.

The Bainbridge Argus learns that the use of fertilizers the past season has proved a success. The Rambo place, containing 1,400 acres, open land, rented for $108. The South Georgia Methodist Conference meets at Cuthbert, on Wednesday, December 1st.

The Monroe Advertiser is informed that Capt. A. D. Candler, of Jonesboro, an accomplished and successful teacher, will take charge of Hilliard Institute next year, with two assistants. He will bring with him a large number of pupils from a distance.

The Macon Telegraph-Messenger says that Egypt Brown, who escaped from the stockade, on the Macon and Augusta Railroad, has been recaptured. The wind blew down George Johnson's canvas and upset his museum. The gorilla fell into the fire and the bears broke loose.

The Columbus Enquirer learns, that new Lodges of Good Templars have been organized in Hamilton, Harris county Ga., and Loachapoka, Ala. Muscogee Superior Court convenes on Monday; Judge Clarke, of the Southwestern Circuit, attending with Judge Johnson.

The Federal Union states that at the last session of the Wilkinson Superior Court, a man named Dixon obtained a verdict of $[illegible] against the Central Railroad for damages sustained while passing under a train at Gordon. McDaniel was found guilty of murder. Mr. George Hollinhead killed a negro in Baldwin county.

The Cuthbert Appeal says that the jail in that city was broken open last week, and Alexander Ford, (colored) condemned for murder, and several other prisoners, liberated. The Grand Jury of Randolph county declare that the reported killing of Jane McDonald, put forth by the negro labor meeting in Macon, is false, and that she is alive.

The Cartersville Express states that A. L. Skinner & Co., of that city, shipped one hundred bushels of chestnuts last Wednesday. A stock company is being raised in [illegible]ow county to hold a fair next fall. [illegible] B. Stegall has presented Sam. Smith with an ear of corn, containing 22 rows of grains, and 55 grains in a row, making 1210 good, sound grains of corn in the ear.

PAPER NO. XV.

ANDERSONVILLE VS. CAMP DOUGLAS.

[For The Constitution.]

In preparing these papers, facts have been written down hastily, in the desultory order in which they have recurred to mind. It being imperative that space and time should be rigidly economized, only a few illustrative incidents have been brought forward. A complete record of our wrongs and sufferings has not been here intended. If attempted. This is but a bare index-page to such a history, forever of monstrous cruelty cited here, that history would contain a chapter replete with repetition. Outrage would there be reiterated upon outrage, and murder upon murder, until a complete record would be filled that would appal the heart of every human reader.

These papers are simply an appeal, in the name of truth, against a wicked wrong, by which unprincipled men have sought to cover up their own enormity—a wrong attempted in the bold design of shifting from the guilty to the innocent, a mountain of iniquity that must crush the one on whom it justly settles.

The South, vanquished, lifeless in the very dust, seemed at their mercy, in inflamed prejudice of the Northern mind making it an easy task to obtain the desired verdict at that tribunal. Before such a bar the honor of a crushed, helpless people was impeached and sentence passed upon one sided evidence, without even a semblance of defense or hearing. Assembled to convict, the judges drew the picture as they pleased, with bar or challenge. But as drawn by them, and reflected by Northern feelings, the darkest shadows cast on Andersonville were, to every one of us, as sunlight when contrasted with what we knew of the dark midnight of our prison-life. The crowning injuries alleged by their chief witnesses, were but weak beginnings of our wrongs. If they starved, their own sworn statements show that it was upon the same allowance on which the rebel soldiers—we ourselves—long marched and fought, the bread broken evenly with them by a struggling, starved nation; while our prison men were starved amid luxuriant abundance; starved by the strong hand of an opulent nation, for no crime or provocation, unless it was deemed a provocation that their own ruthless policy of blockade and devastation had made the South so poor that she was equally unable to feed and clothe her own unshrinking soldiers, and extend a hand of generous plenty to her prisoners.

Did not the same men charge upon the South the violation of the cartel, and the exchange of prisoners? But at last that wicked falsehood was forced home and settled upon themselves by their own associates, in the recriminations of a party quarrel. After such proof of their duplicity and infamy, what weight is due to any of their allegations?

Were there not one living witness, comparison of the lists of mortality at Andersonville and at the Northern prisons, would speak the just condemnation. Great as the numbers were at Andersonville, where a vigorous blockade deprived the sick (of friend and foe alike) of saving remedies, they were greater in the Northern prisons, where medicines and facilities of cure were supplied in abundance.

A bare comparison of these unfailing figures, speaks an unanswerable vindication of the South. WITH ALL HER IMPOVERISHMENT AND DISADVANTAGES, SHE LOST FEWER PRISONERS IN PROPORTION TO THE AGGREGATE NUMBER THAN WERE BURIED BY THE NORTH, WITH ALL HER VAUNTED HUMANITY AND HORROR OF SOUTHERN CRUELTY.

And there are other well known facts of history, which are self-asserting standards, by which to measure the humanity of the opposing governments.

It is now known everywhere, that the South was anxious for exchange, plead for it, urged her inability to give proper medical care to her dying prisoners. But the North turned a deaf ear to the entreaty, and even basely charged the stoppage

Finally, beginning to relent, the Federal authorities asked that the worst cases—the very worst, even though it should seem that they could hardly survive transportation—should be sent up from all the Southern prisons. First obtaining an honorable (!) pledge that these poor creatures should not be held up to the public as an average of Northern prisoners, the South sent out from her hospitals, the feeblest there, sent them with all the care and provisions for their comfort in her power, saying, take them as a free gift—if you have our sick at hand, exchange for them—if you have none, no matter, take them without equivalent.

The world knows how this magnanimous action was rewarded—how the bright faith of the South in a nation's pledge was met. In shameless violation of the faithless promise, those living shadows were paraded before the Northern people as exponents of Southern inhumanity. Photographs of the most emaciated were taken and scattered broadcast—the pictorial papers sent the shameless falsehoods flaming over the land; and thus was popular hatred fired against the innocent, to direct public attention from facts which those unprincipled jugglers knew would speak their ruinous condemnation.

Finally, failing with all her entreaty and concession, to effect an exchange, the South proposed to send her own cotton to New York, sell it there, and buy, at any price, medicines and supplies to check the mortality among her prisoners. She proposed those supplies should be given into the charge of any Federal officials, taken by them to the Southern prisoners, and there, by them, administered to the Federal sick. But this magnanimous offer was rejected and suppressed.

It would have spoken too nobly for the weak, struggling enemy. It would have given the broad lie to all the slanders—aroused suspicion of the infamous duplicity of the nation's policy—the policy that it was better to let a Northern soldier die in prison than to give a rebel soldier in exchange for him.

Contrast this generous offer of the Confederate Government with the rejected prayer for medicines of the ten Camp Douglas Surgeons, and you have one more unfailing standard by which to measure the humanity and temper of the antagonistic powers.

The above is all acknowledged history. The authentic official papers have publicly challenged a denial, and no voice was raised. They could not be gain sayed.

SIDNEY HARRINGTON.

Letter From Macon—The Fair.

MACON, Nov. 17, 1869.

Dear Constitution: I have more than once in fancy depicted the picture "Bill Arp," describes, of the panic on the retreat from Atlanta. But were "S. A. E." "Bill," and "Bill" S. A. E., twere an S. A. E. who would portray in your columns a scene—a continuous scene—to which the Atlanta "war panic" were faint in ludicrousness.

The crowd here is large—immense—and if there is a word that will convey a more extensive meaning, it is that too. In fact, it is distressingly large. It hurts ones toes, and ribs too, to be among it. It jars his hearing to listen to its blustering jabbering. It stirs his risibilities to a dangerous out burst to see some of the gyrations of the anxious body, in its endeavors to reach the Fair ground.

Not content to wait until entrance might be made through the doors of the cars, some gents attempted to go in at the windows. A few succeeded, but one fellow, who, in entering his head, forgot to estimate for his middle round, had the mortification to find a halt absolutely necessary, when that portion, by far the largest around of his body corporeal, reached the sides of the window. Poor (?) unfortunate. He did wriggle his sides, bottom and top, but all in vain—"It was no go." He came back to the ground, not on his feet either, but fortunately, on where he would have come down on a chair.

On top of one of the trains—imagine once—a Georgia legislator on his all-fours, afraid to stand, afraid to sit.

Two old ladies fought like Kilkenny cats, for about two seconds, in the "scrouge" at the entrance.

And your correspondent, accompanying a—oh—a lovely young widow, was excluded from the cars and her delightful presence by the door closing just after she passed in from his hand. And he knocked and begged to no purpose, until those glorious eyes and her magnificent voice plead with the guard. Then he yielded, and I was at her side once more.

But adieu to that successful fair. Here's to one that is wanting in the grace and beautiful carriage of the other. It's our Georgia State Fair that is so wanting. I have no breaks to remove, put on in my previous letters. I turn them on harder. I heard one man say to-day, "the whole thing's a bust." That ain't altogether so. It's so only in part. The attendance was a success to-day—a huge success. It beat the Louisville Commercial Convention. It had of big men, a few—of little men and of ladies, a multitude.

Gen. Horace Capron, Commissioner of Agriculture—whom I much admire—Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, Col. John W. Forney, of the Press, Prof. Henry, Mr. Kapp, President of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Society, Mr. Delano, Chief Justice Brown, Gov. Bullock, Judge Lochrane, Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. A. H. Colquitt, Gen. P. M. B. Young, and last, though not least in importance on this occasion, Gen. Wade Hampton, who delivered the annual address for the present Fair. Concerning it, I can make no remarks, I was not present.

Several Rulers in the "Fourth Estate of the realm," were on hand: Solon Robinson, of the Tribune; Col. I. W. Avery, of THE CONSTITUTION; Mr. Randall, of the Constitutionalist; Mr. Estell, of the Morning Mews, Savannah; Henry Grady, ("King Hans,") of the Rome Courier; Fitch, of the Star; Harrison, of the Advertiser; Mr. Fulton, of the Farmer and Artisan; Mr. Atkinson, of the Farmer and Artisan, and the Southern Banner; Col. Styles, of the Albany News; Gen. Wright, and Mr. Gregg Wright, of the Chronicle and Sentinel; Mr. Camp, of the Southern Cultivator.

There are, also, some big guns from the Cotton Kingdom. Mr. Dickson, Mr. B. G. Lockett, Mr. Jordan, James M. Alston, of Sumter, Judge Vason, of Albany, and others.

So much for "men and means." Tomorrow I will say something of the things on exhibition.

S. A. E.

P. S.—This is to inform her that I have received her last letter. 'Tis most acceptable, but I haven't time to reply except in this way.

S. A. E.

The Last Days of Louis Napoleon.

PARIS.—A public meeting just held at the residence of M. Brielle, Boulevard de Clichy, affords a curious illustration of the temper of the Parisians at the present time. Jules Simon, Pelletan, Jules Ferry, and Bancel, all Deputies of Paris to the Corps Legislatif, went thither at the request of many of their constituents to explain their conduct on the 26th, on which day, it will be remembered, terminated the constitutional recess of the Legislature. The Emperor having refused to convoke the Corps Legislatif on that day, the people requested their representatives to open the session for themselves. This they declined to do on various pretexts.

Scarcely had the Deputies in question entered the house of M. Brielle, when it became evident that their reception was not to be of the most cordial character. Unfortunately, Pelletan and Jules Simon did not, or would not perceive this, but relying on their past popularity, endeavored in an easy, off-hand way, to allay the excitement of their auditors. Never were popular favorites more deceived. They were greeted with hootings and other signs of disapprobation, which finally became so violent that the Deputies were with difficulty enabled to get out of the house. This was no transient ebullition of passion or temper, but a significant expression of the feelings of the working classes, who formed the greater part of the audience. These people are disgusted with the plausible orators and rhetoricians who assume to be the leaders of the Opposition, and who are afraid to act when the critical moment arrives. They begin to ask why social distinctions are still upheld, and to demand leaders of their own class. Action is the policy of the masses, and the working men of France call for action.

This, of course is displeasing to those who have gained a cheap popularity by a few rounded periods. It is equally displeasing to the Government, which put it down with the Chassepot at St. Aubin, and was prepared to do the same at Paris on the 26th, had the occasion demanded. Nevertheless, the Emperor, by being obliged to resort to violence, injures his cause. Brute force is essentially weak and transient in its effects, and the St. Aubin massacre sowed the seeds of an intense hatred among the working classes, not only in France, but over all Europe. For through the instrumentality of the International Society, whose Executive Committee is established in London, the interests of labor throughout the Continent are consolidated.

Various circumstances have recently contributed to irritate these people. The brutality of Princes Murat and Wagram, in inflicting punishment on M. Comte; the decision of the tribunal against the latter for disrespect to Prince Murat; the law of 1858 which prohibits M. Comte from bringing an action against his oppressors, because they are collaterally related to the imperial family; the letter of Gen. Pette, commanding the Department de l'Eure, to a journalist, forbidding him to speak disrespectfully of officers under his command, which de facto subjects the press to military authority; and finally, the want of backbone displayed by the brilliant Paris Deputies—all these are but separate counts in the indictment against the Government. Mistrust has been added to hatred, and throughout Europe, but especially in France, the laboring classes at this moment suspect every one who is not a laboring man. It is but fair to add that the Government is equally on its guard, as a proof of which I may state that the Chassepot rifles, given to the Garde Mobile for exercise in the manual, have recently been deprived of their locks and bayonets. What kind of a Government do you think that is which fears to intrust the people with arms for purposes of drill?

This is a true picture of the France of to-day. Let an opportunity come—the death of the Emperor, for instance, who can not last longer than next spring—and you will see such a popular uprising as was never witnessed before.

Piety and Paper Rags.

We dont't personally know the Rev. Mr. Wheeler, self-announced agent for supplying the poor children of the South with school books; but we should like to learn something about him. The Rev. Mr. Wheeler—a tall, dark-complexioned, clerical-looking man, with a long black beard—the other day appeared in the public schools of Jersey City, with a letter from the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. Dickinson, and was permitted to appeal to the boys and girls to aid him in educating the children at the South. He solicited to this end contributions of school books, pamphlets, and "Sunday School papers that were not too much soiled;" in fact, anything readable would be gratefully accepted.

Every family knows to its cost that books in use in the schools of one locality are discarded in another. Hence, in this moving community, most families have a considerable accumulation of such school books, in good, serviceable condition. The Rev. Mr. Wheeler, having got the children warmly enlisted in his benevolent labors, by his pathetic appeals in behalf of the Southern little folks who are growing up in ignorance, promised to call next day for their contributions. The children with glowing hearts bore liberal gifts, by the armful, from their homes to school; but the Rev. Mr. Wheeler did not appear. On the day following, however, an express wagon, bearing the legend:

"STOCKWELL'S EXPRESS, 25 ANN ST.,"

drove up to the school house, and the reverend gentleman, or some one representing him, very irreverently tumbled these cherished mementoes of by-gone school-day delights into the vehicle. Then mounting his wagon, without a word of thanks to the little donors, or of acknowledgment to the teachers, he drove off. The children were indignant at such treatment. The man was, they said, a discourteous boor, at the best. They reasoned, also, that the books, if intended for the South, should have gone by an express which connects with the Southern trains and steamers, and doesn't run via "25 Ann street." In their eyes it looked like a swindle, an opinion which the conduct of the reverend collector only served to confirm. At their request, we inquired yesterday of Mr. Stockwell, at the famous old paper warehouse aforesaid, about this Mr. Wheeler. Mr. Stockwell informed us that he had known the Rev. Mr. Wheeler for six years, as engaged in the same business of old book collecting, and knew nothing to his discredit; that he had repeatedly brought old books to that store for sale, and he had done so on Thursday last, the day to which the Jersey City school children refer. Mr. Stockwell further says that Mr. Wheeler reserves to himself such books as are serviceable, only selling the refuse, and that the reverend gentleman will be back in about three weeks, when he (Mr. Stockwell) will inquire into the matter.—*N. Colonel Wm. Pillow—Reminiscences of a Man that Would not Fall Back.

From the Columbia Herald, Nov. 13.]

Very few of the young men of this generation know much about the late Colonel William Pillow, although he has been dead but little more than a year, and passed a life having more remarkable events crowded into it than any other man in the country. He was one hundred years old when he died, having been born before Humboldt and the great Napoleon. During all his early manhood his was a soldier's life, fighting the Indians and enduring the hardness of frontier life. There are enough incidents, of a historical nature, to fill a large book, and yet so quiet and unpretentious was his life near Bigbyville, that no one knew, when they met him in the road, that they were passing one who was in many respects a "grand man." He had the fine sensitive instincts of a woman united to a lionic courage, and the purity of honor of a young girl. He possessed sinews of iron, and even up to his death he walked as martially upright as old Hickory himself. The 8th day of November—last Monday—recalls to mind one of the incidents of his life. A number of years ago, Nimrod Porter, Esq., probably then a candidate for some office, met Col. Pillow on the square one day, and in a smiling way said, "Colonel Pillow, do you remember the 8th of November, the 8th of November, 1813?" "Yes, very well; the day of the battle of Talladega." The circumstances thus recalled by these two old warriors are these: On the 7th of November, 1813, Colonel Pillow commanded a regiment of Tennessee troops under Old Hickory. Gen. Jackson's aid-de-camp, Capt. Sinclair, rode up to Col. Pillow and ordered him to go up a certain ravine while the main army, under the General would take a different route. "If you meet the enemy," said Captain S., "fall back immediately." The Colonel replied emphatically, "I'll do no such thing—I will not fall back." Away went the Captain, and presently General Jackson rode up furiously, and demanded in a stern tone, "Colonel Pillow, what is this I hear—do you refuse to obey my orders?" "Yes, sir; I will not fall back in retreat after I once become engaged in fight—I will not leave my wounded men on the field to be scalped by the demons. But, General, I will fight them till you come up!" The face of Jackson melted in an instant from inflexible rigidity into a bland smile of pleasure, and his porcupine hair smoothed down, as he said quickly, "All right, Colonel, all right, just fight 'em till I come up. All right." They met the Indians the next day, and the world knows the result. Some time after this event, on a certain occasion, General Jackson became very violent at some report started about himself, and swore he would cowhide the man that started it. "No you won't," said General Roberts, of Rutherford Creek. General Jackson repeated that he would cowhide any man under heaven who had started that report. "General, you will do no such thing. You will not cowhide this man, he is not to be cowhided by mortal man. It was Colonel Pillow." It is hardly necessary to remark that no more was heard of cowhiding.

The Public Debt—How to Pay it and not Ruin the Tax Payer.

The question is in itself simple. We are paying off our debt at a terrible cost to the people. For every dollar that goes into the Treasury at least another dollar is taken from the tax payers for the benefit of private interests. That is to say, the people pay three hundred millions a year to the Government, and under the present system, another sum of three hundred millions goes to private monopolies and to waste. A statesmanlike adjustment of our tariff and tax laws would relieve the people of half the burdens they now endure, and yet actually increase the revenues. It would relieve them of nearly two-thirds in amount and of nineteen-twentieths in number, of all the duties now levied, and still produce revenue enough to diminish the debt handsomely the first year. It would give a new impulse to the industry and trade of the country, such as would not only rapidly develop its idle resources and add to the standard of comfort in life, but would impart a new elasticity to the revenues themselves, so that, with each succeeding year, large reductions of taxation would be accompanied by a rapid payment of the public debt. It would, in short, solve every important financial problem now before the Government, and leave the country free to make itself, what nature and a great people are trying under difficulties to make it, the first in Christendom in wealth and prosperity.

The question is simple, but not so the means of deciding it. The great party entrusted with its solution contains many selfish, many deluded men. Some of its would-be leaders may love the people much, but they love plunder and monopoly more. These and the giant monopolies they represent will leave no agency unused, no power unappealed to, to continue their rule. They will fall; under the general enlightenment upon economical questions which is now spreading, their reign can be but short; even the device of allying themselves with those who represent on other questions the conscience and honor of the people will not avail them long. It is time for those who control the public acts of the majority in Congress to know and feel that they are on their trial; that the people will study and understand what they do.—N. Y. Evening Post.

THE FLYING TRAPEZE—FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT TO A FEMALE PERFORMER.—On Sunday night last, M'lle Sagrino, a performer on what is called the flying trapeze, begun an engagement at the Variety Theatre. She is a brilliant star in this line of daring gymnastics, and is said to have no superior, if rival, in the world. We understand that she is about eighteen years of age, of foreign birth, and the wife of Hercules Libbey, a cannon ball manipulator, now performing at the same theatre. The dangerous feat of M'lle Sagrino—for they are nearly all done near the dome of the building, and with no net beneath to save her in the event of a fall—drew crowds of admiring spectators, and nothing occurred out of the usual course until last evening about 4 o'clock. At this time she was upon the trapez, executing the various portions of a programme, which is nothing but a mad risk of human life, from beginning to end. The audience noticed that she was less skillful than ordinary, and that once or twice she appeared to keep her balance upon the swinging bar with great difficulty. But she went on, and at last, in one of her whirls in mid air, her foot slipped, she grasped at the cords, missed them, and was hurled headlong to the floor below—a distance of not less than 35 feet! The motion of her body, at the moment the accident took place, sent the poor woman as far forward as the orchestra, where she struck with her head on the back of a chair and her arm across a music stand. A wild yell of horror rose from the audience as they witnessed the terrific sight and saw the form of M'lle Sagrino launched from the ceiling toward what appeared instant and awful death. A rush was made to the spot, but the husband was there before them all, and clasping his senseless wife, bore her behind the scenes. The result of her injuries is at present uncertain.—Missouri Republican.

A MARRIED WOMAN TRANSACTING BUSINESS IN HER OWN BEHALF, HAS REALLY A SEPARATE ESTATE—THE RICHINGS-WALDRON DISPUTE.—The General Term of the Marine Court have affirmed, on appeal, a judgment rendered against Caroline Richings for $106, in favor of Laura Waldron, for breach of contract. Miss Waldron claimed that she made an agreement with Miss Richings to sing in opera as prima donna during the season of 1867–'68, for $50 a week while she sung in one opera, and $75 a week when she could sing in three. Miss Richings claimed that the engagement was contingent upon a successful trial in Philadelphia and Boston, and that Miss Waldron failed in the latter place. Miss Waldron, on the other hand, averred that the only trial was to be in Philadelphia, and that she triumphantly succeeded. Miss Waldron was given judgment in her favor at the trial before Judge Curtis, in June, 1808; the appeal was argued in June, 1869, and the decision of affirmance was rendered on Saturday. Miss Richings' ground of appeal was, that being a married woman, she could not be sued under the laws of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts where the services were rendered against her in personam without showing that she had a separate estate. In reply it was claimed to be proved that she owned and run the opera, and that this constituted a separate estate.—New York Sun.

A DYING MAN IN A DIFFICULTY—HIS COFFIN TOO SMALL.—A certain native living in Koolau has been sick, and apprehending that his end was near at hand, sent into town for a coffin, so that his friends might be prepared to give him proper burial. In due time the coffin arrived, upon seeing which, grave doubts arose in the sick man's mind as to whether it would fit. No means to decide the question appearing so conclusive to him as a "personal test," he tried himself, and could not get in, the thing was so narrow! He soundly berated his messenger for his stupidity in not getting a coffin suitable for his purpose, and lost no time in saving the capital invested, so far as possible. Knowing of another man sick like himself, who also expected to die, he entered into negotiations with him at once, and succeeded in disposing of the useless (to him) article, at a loss of only $4. Our readers will appreciate the above when we state that this provident gentleman is the honorable member from Koolau, who in years past has caused no little mirth on account of his eccentricities. We sincerely hope that the venerable and eccentric gentleman's fears will not be realized, but that he may instead long live and make us all laugh many more times.—Honolulu Gazette, Sep. 29th.

HOW A RAILROAD KING TRAVELS.—Vice-President Torrence, of the New York Central Railroad, has a horse worth keeping—an iron horse yclept a locomotive. It is a fine one, and is elegantly fitted up inside of the engineer's house. The seats are on steel springs, and are richly upholstered, while every appliance is visible to keep out sparks and dust. This engine is in charge of a first-class engineer, whose only business is to run his machine wherever and whenever the Vice-President wishes him to. Should Mr. Torrence consider that his presence is important in Buffalo, the engineer is ordered to fire up, the telegraph conveys the intelligence that Torrence is on the road, and away goes the horse through towns and villages like a streak of lightning, resting not till the destination is reached. Business finished, the return is made, the horse put in the stable, and not taken out again till the Vice-President issues the order for another ride.

THE CHICKEN FEVER REVIVING.—Three hundred and sixty-eight imported fowls were sold in New York recently, for $3,070, averaging $8 25 each. The highest price paid was for a trio of partridge Cochins, $80. Three Houdans brought $55, and three dark Brahmas $52. The highest price paid for Buff Cochins was $46. A trio of gray Dorkings brought $38. The lowest price paid was for a pair of white Bantams, $3. A fine pair of Toulouse geese sold for $26. A fine pair of Embden geese for $17 50—being less than the amount of freight and duties would have been if imported alone.

DR. GUILMETTE'S
DOUBLE DISTILLED
Extract of Juniper.

DR. GUILMETTE, Physician and Chemist of 40 years, experience, after many costly trials, has succeeded in producing a pure JUNIPERINE EXTRACT, warranted free from the deleterious oils usually found in foreign and domestic Gins, and which, by their action upon the fluids and tissues of the body, aggravate the disease, rather than effect a cure.

THIS PURE EXTRACT OF JUNIPER
Is a pleasant healthful beverage, and is superior to all other remedies for DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS,
DEBILITY OF STOMACH and BOWELS,
CHOLIC,
DYSPEPSIA,
FLATULENCY,
GRAVEL,
DIABETES,
And all Diseases of the Urinary Organs.

Read the Testimony of Prof. Geo. B. Wood, one of our highest authorities:
"Juniper is Gently Stimulant, Cordial to the Stomach, Carminative, and Diuretic. The Diuretic is very decided. It answers an excellent purpose in Dropsy, as an Alternative in Scorbutic and Eruptive Disorders, and as a Gentle Stimulant in Debility of the Stomach and Bowels."

Guaranteed to be Chemically Pure.

THE MACON FAIR.

Editorial Correspondence.

MACON, Nov. 17, 1869.

Our experience to-day has been multitudinous, variegated, squeeze-atory and stirring, but particularly squeeze-atory. We have a clear conception of jam. We know what jam is. There has been pure unadulterated jam everywhere—jam in the cars, jam on the streets, jam in the hotels, jam on the Fair ground, jam in the Fair house, jam everywhere and all about—mashing, grinding, pushing, rushing, omnipresent and omnipotent jam—jam that tousled clothes and punched flesh, jam that had no mercy and had its own way, jam that for once has been the tyrant of the day.

The crowd to-day on the Fair ground reached at least fifteen thousand visitors. The day was lovely, but windy and cool. Hourly trains went out packed to the brim. We know whereof we speak. We rode in one of them. We played the role of a wedge, jammed in a vertical position between crinoline on the one side, and pantaloons on the other. Thus helplessly crammed, we found our editorial vision on a line with a solid acre of waterfalls, and during the painful period our active mind cogitated on the subject of this curious article of toile architecture. We saw chignons of all shapes and dimensions, color and aspects. Chiggies-looking, like small dabs of black butter; flat ones, hugging heads like thin slap-jacks; robustious ones, like huge flour mops; plaited ones, in yellow rolls, like the gingerbread of our boyhood; frizzled ones, all curly-cues and fuss; dainty ones, looking as if they had just recovered from a chronic ague.

We cannot do justice to the subject.

Arriving at the ground, the pressure upon the one gate of entrance was fearful. We thought it a great mistake that several gates were not provided. The pressure was so great that the crowd surged through with resistless force, running over the door keeper, lifting ladies off their feet, and almost bruising people in the mash.

A great improvement has been made in the arrangement of things. Much more order reigns.

About eleven o'clock the visitors, or a goodly number of them, gathered in the Hippodrome, a large circular Amphitheatre, capable of holding some twelve thousand persons. On the speaker's stand the President of the Society, Mr. B. C. Yancey, welcomed the invited guests. Judge Woodward, of Pensylvania, and Gen. H. Capron, of the Agricultural Bureau at Washington, made brief responses. The stand was filled with about fifty gentlemen who crowded around the speakers and monopolized the entire talk. The great unterrified body of spectators had the felicity of drinking in the cheers of the aforesaid fifty, as their part of this performance. Judge Woodward and Gen. Capron must certainly have said some good things, judging from the frequent applause they elicited from the little circle of hearers. But it was all a dumb show, neither visible nor audible to the people. As we were out in the crowd, we did not hear what we imagine to be the admirable sentiments of the distinguished visitors.

Among the crowd we noticed many noted Georgians—Gen. Gordon, Gen. Wright, Judge Cabiness, Senator Josh Hill, Judge Gibson, Mr. Billups, of Madison, Col. Jack Smith, of Hancock, Gen. Young, and others.

Gen. Hampton was then introduced to the audience, and deafening cheers greeted the gallant Southerner. A raw, cold wind blew stiffly upon the people, and hundreds of elegantly dressed and delicate ladies sat under its chilling discomfort to hear the distinguished Carolinian—a tribute to him to be highly estimated.

Unfortunately, the wind blew so sharply, that it was impossible for all of the large concourse to hear the speech.

It was our first sight of General Hampton, and we noted him well. His face bears the unmistakable look of strong brains and high breeding. Above the medium size, of well-kit and symmetricial frame, with a beaming decidedly distenpue, a noble head, a high broad brow, most elegant manners, this courtly Southerner shows the signet of a lofty manhood.

We do not attempt to give a synopsis of his speech, because, it would be unjust to it. It will be published in full.

In the afternoon there were some trotting matches against time. The great trots of the Fair will take place to-morrow. The runs this afternoon were rather informal, irregular concerns. The exhibition of stock was good. There are many fine horses on exhibition. We will notice this feature more fully, hereafter.

In order to use the mail, we can not write more in this letter.

The Fair is increasing in interest. The crowd still swells. If it don't quit doing so, the hotels will pop clear open. This would be a lamentable calamity, but it is inevitable unless the influx of humans stops. The array of crinoline is dazzling. Such a gorgeous display of millinery is rarely vouchsafe in masculine vision, or horrifies the male pocket. The contribution of pretty girls, charming wives, and amazing widows is the finest feature of the whole concern. No prizes have been offered for competition in this matter, probably because of the utter inability of having any decision.

THE PRESS CONVENTION.

The Convention met at 7 o'clock at night in the City Hall—some eighteen papers represented. The members present were President Clisby, Secretary Willingham, Gen. Wright, Mr. Atkinson, Shecut, Styles, Medlock, Christian, Jones, Ragland Weston, Sawtell, Avery. Up to mail time, no action taken.

Foreign.

Eugenie has gone to Alexandria.

The Bishop of Havana has been arrested.

Lopez is in close quarters in Paraguay, surrounded by Brazilian soldiers.

The Italian Government favors the elevation of the Duke of Genoa to the throne of Spain.

Topete, the Spanish Admiral, recently resigned, has been elected Vice-President of the Cortes.

The Paraguayan troops are demoralized and deserting from Lopez, who professed to have discovered a military conspiracy, and has executed several officers and soldiers of his army.

Macon Letter.

MACON, Nov. —, 1869.

Mr. Editor: Our State Fair, we believe, is to be regarded as the logical outworking of a marked characteristic of the nineteenth century, which is, the tendency to concentration. Witness the great Paris Exposition, the mammoth Fairs and Conventions that have recently occurred in our own country, the Camp Meetings and Associations of the Churches. Doubtless, many reasons and inducements may be assigned as the causes of these, but it is not irrational to think that they have all originated in obedience to a mighty and all-pervading impulse of the age, which seems to group together around centres of attraction the people of every land.

We can trace in the large masses that have congregated in Macon, the influence of this principle. Many visitors have come for the inspection and testing of agricultural implements; many are here on account of other business considerations, but a large majority, we judge, have found their way hither, brought by the less practical, but not less patent, motive of seeing and joining an immense assembly of people.

We do not unadvisedly apply to the crowd here the adjective immense. Add together the number that frequent College commencements, and political mass-meetings, and church conferences, you will even then have an inadequate conception of the multitude that throngs the city. Macon has long coveted the guests that now fills her houses and streets; but in extending her generous invitations, and throwing open her arms of welcome, the city has over-estimated her capacity; and those who accommodate the guests may reasonably consider themselves in the fix of the Philistines when they captured the Ark of God; they soon found that the object of their desire was not altogether desirable. The fact is, everybody and everybody else has come to the Fair. We have here representations of all classes; men of note, as well as those to fortune and to fame unknown. Of beautiful young ladies there are not a few. If they were not here, the whole scene would be like the altar of Hymen, where the torch had been removed, and the smoke alone remained. The historic record left us of what may be considered the earliest Fair in national annals—we allude to the Roman legend how that Romulus provided wives for the young men of Rome, by the arrangement that they should steal from the assembled multitude the goodly Sabine women, on whom fancy might fix its choice—tells us of marriages, albeit, they were forced. It would not be objectionable if, in this respect, the Georgia Fair should prove an imitation of its Roman predecessor, except in the phase of compulsion. It would please all hands if our young men would steal from the galaxy of lovely women here—partners for the "better and the worse" of life.

In its early stages the Fair did not promise to be a success. Exhibitors were tardy in bringing up their articles. The clerks for the registry of the same seemed uninitiated and dilatory; so that for Tuesday and Wednesday, chaos reigned supreme. Nothing was in order. Such was the case at the world's creation. Restless tumultuous chaos preceded the beautiful legitimatized cosmos which the plastic hand of the Mighty Maker shaped out. So we are called upon to believe that from the disarranged elements which lay here and there during the first two days, there will result a rythmic and systematized Fair which the most fastidious will pronounce a success. All admit that there are on the grounds ample materials for a splendid Fair. Orderly arrangement—which will soon prevail—will make the entire enterprise universally satisfactory. IHPHC.

Devotion to Right.

Devotion to Right and hatred of Wrong, are sentiments which should govern every human heart, and guide every human action. But, do they? Is the world, in its superlative wisdom of to-day, battling for these sentiments? Is it giving Right the first place, and trampling Wrong in the dust? Does it reward Right and punish Wrong? It does not. Right meets an approving smile, here and there, but Wrong is a boon companion everywhere, and if not a bosom friend, at least an agreeable acquaintance. Oh! the world is very wise; but it isn't very good! It patronizes Right when it is its interest to patronize Right; but it seems to think it oftener its interest to glorify Wrong—and so Wrong holds the first place and Right is forced into the back-ground of obscurity.

Men temporize, and time-serve, and fawn around Power; and sacrifice Principle to Policy, and Justice to Injustice; and Liberty to Tyranny. And when Right steps in between, and lifts its warning voice against Wrong, they scorn its teaching, or turn a deaf ear to its premonitions, and cry out that it is better to compromise, than to dwell in an uncertainty of fate. Compromise! Compromise is their cry and their action. What would they compromise? Truth can't be compromised. Principal can't be compromised. Right can't be compromised. They can only be sacrificed, subjected, set aside. Then comes Falsehood, and Error, and Wrong. These are the evils that Policy brings with it. Policy can't help it. It is its nature to drag these evils after it; and when it takes the place of Right, it becomes of itself, Wrong. It doesn't improve the condition of those who adopt it. It would be impossible for it to do so. It may seem to relieve present troubles; but that is only a delusion. It only serves to strengthen future woes. Private and public history will sustain this assertion. And those who are "sowing the wind" in this country will surely "reap the whirlwind" in the future.

Devotion to Right will surely avert the evil. No swerving from the Right—no faltering in the path of duty—no deviation from Truth—no sacrifice of Principle; but devotion to Right, whether in public or private action, is all that can bring true peace, secure prosperity and lasting happiness. This is a lesson which the people of the South can not too often learn, or too untiringly practice.—Banner of the South.

The Hog Crop.

It seems to be conceded by the recognized authorities of the West, that the hog crop will be equal to last year in point of numbers, but there is, nevertheless, a strong effort to sustain the extreme prices which have prevailed all through the current year, on the ground that the supply of old meats in the country is practically exhausted, and that therefore the exigencies of the demand for home consumption and export will be such as not to warrant any material decline. Again, it is contended by the high price theorists at the West, that "the present exhorbitant price of hogs should be sustained through the winter, in order to compensate the farmers for the low prices ruling for their grain—in other words, that the interests of the packers and consumers should be sacrificed for the purpose of benefiting the producers. It is difficult to perceive any justice in such an assumption. The logic is false in theory, and untenable in every respect. For the past few years the farmers have monopolized the lion's share of the profits of the provision business, and though those packers who commenced laying up stock at the beginning of the season, and sold out during the speculative times of January and February, were handsomely remunerated, their successors in the stock have had a different story to tell."

The Cincinnati Price Current is of opinion that prices will rule comparatively high, notwithstanding the abundance of hogs and the grain to feed them upon, because of the exhausted stocks of old meats. It looks, however, for some decline, for the reason that the wants of England will be much less than they were last year, and that at last year's prices but little will be needed, as the supply of both hogs and cattle, in the British Isles, is greater than it was a year ago. Viewed in all these aspects, it is easily seen that the future is anything but encouraging for the packers of pork, and that their true course is to be cautious and patient. In view of all the known facts and prospects connected with the trade, a much lower average of prices than those of last season seems to be the only safety for dealers, or rather for those who will have to hold the stocks during the season. Nearly all kinds of trade and industry are depressed, and with an abundance of all food products, it is not likely, in the absence of any extraordinary demand, that war prices can be maintained. Breadstuffs are down to a reasonable scale of prices, and it is evident that meat provisions must take the same course.

☞ In the Warren (Ky.) Circuit Court, once, an eccentric juryman named Mitchell, after some fruitless hours' labor with his associates over a knotty case upon which they could not agree, rushed into the court and astonished the judge with the announcement that the jury was hung, "because there were eleven of the d—des contrariest men up stairs you ever saw!"

Marriage Without Ceremony—An Important Decision by Judge Bard.

Judge Barnard, in the suit of Beatrice Bissell against John B. Bissell, for divorce on the ground of abandonment, has rendered a decision upholding the alleged marriage between the parties, and granting a separation and alimony. After reciting the testimony as already published in the New York World, his Honor says:

By actual marriage is meant, not the solemnization before a minister or magistrate—for, as has already been shown, no such solemnization is requisite—but what is intended is that the actual making of the marriage contract between the parties must be proved by direct evidence and not left to be inferred from circumstances, admissions, and the like. Until by recent legislation the wife was made a competent witness in the actions in which her husband is a party. It is evident that where a marriage of this description was contracted in the absence of any witness, there was no means of furnishing the direct proof required in this class of cases, and offenses of this description might be committed with comparative impunity. But now, the wife being made a competent witness, her testimony, if corroborated and entitled to credit, is sufficient to establish the marriage. The only question in this case, it seems to me, is as to the credibility to be attached to the testimony of the plaintiff and defendant respectively. The plaintiff stands unimpeached and uncontradicted except by the defendant, while she is corroborated by the testimony of Mrs. St. Clair, Miss Birch, Miss Knight, and Mr. and Mrs. Stiesi. The elaborate cross-examination to which she was subjected failed to disclose any material discrepancy in her evidence, and nothing was shown to cast suspicion upon her truthfulness. Opposed to her evidence are the denials of the defendant.

If the practice is as common as the defendant alleges of men passing off their mistresses as their wives, and allowing them to bear their names without any marriage contract, it is time that they should learn the risks to which they expose themselves in thus trifling with the marriage institution, and that a check should be put upon practices so dangerous to the good order of society. There should be a decree declaring the plantiff to be the lawful wife of the defendant, and their child to be legitimate, and adjudging a limited divorce and alimony, with costs and reasonable expenses of the litigation, and the temporary alimony allowed by the order of Judge Ingraham should be increased.

PLANTING STRAWBERRIES IN THE FALL.—A horticulturist expresses his opinion on the subject as follows: After a good share of experience and well extended observation, I am satisfied it does not pay to plant strawberries in the fall; by this I mean large plantations of several acres. I have found fall-planted strawberries more liable to winter-kill, and by the time they have just commenced their new growth in the fall, after transplanting into their new beds, the winter comes upon them and checks their growth suddenly. On comparison of two beds planted side by side, one in the fall and one the next spring, I found that in fruiting time the next year the spring bed had larger plants, larger berries, more of them, and was generally more thrifty and productive.

My theory of strawberry planting is that they should be transplanted only in moist weather and allowed to grow naturally undisturbed during the entire season. The fall season is too short, and ends too abruptly and severely. A large number of amateurs think that by planting in August or September a fine crop of fruit can be gained the next season. My experience shows this to be a fallacy to a certain degree. Although there will be a small crop, a few berries on each plant, yet they do not deserve the name of a crop; and I generally clip off all blossoms, believing that too early fruitage is more of an injury than a benefit. All strawberries love good treatment, and if any one will observe spring planting, good barn-yard manure and liberal mulching both summer and winter, he will find the crop that comes the second year compensatory for the long time waiting for it.

TEA IN NORTH CAROLINA.—Miss Mattie H. Pearce, of Gum Branch, Ouslow county, N. C., writes to the Journal of Commerce, as follows:

"I have been informed by old persons that tea has been grown in North Carolina for thirty years. We are now only in want of a Chinaman's knowledge for curing it. The tea here is very prolific in growth. It requires but one sowing. Broadcast; afterwards it sows itself. Sprouting in early spring, the first crop yields five pickings. In July its seeds mature, fall and sprout, and at this date those sprouts are blooming and seeding, yielding their crop, making six crops a year. It grows from three to five feet high, being the most hard plant I ever saw. It flourishes in sunshine and shade, without cultivation, in marl, clay and rocky soil. In the soil about New York it would yield, I suppose, two crops. The switches being so tough, would make paper or rope. The sample which I send you is the growth of this year. The tea will wilt with our heavy November frost, leaving stalks all winter. This is the Bohea or black tea. The first pickings are the green tea. (See Encyclopedia of Geography, by Hugh Murray, vol. 2, page 405) I have several bags of tea simply dried in the sun, seed and tea for sale. Large size thimbleful of seeds I will sell for one dollar. This will suffice for one acre, which will yield 1,000 pounds of tea.

HOW TO USE THE WASTE PASTURES OF THE SOUTH.—Where land is plenty and cheap as it is in the Southern and Southwestern States, and Territories, and in most of our Western States, the raising and feeding of cattle might be conducted on a much more extended scale than it now is, or ever has been. The prices of cattle have ruled very high in the Eastern markets for several years past, and no indication yet of a downward tendency, but rather the contrary.

The extensive ranges of pasture in those regions, pastures that cost nothing, the spontaneous growth of the soil, a sufficient supply for the whole year, with mild winters, or almost no winters at all, hold out inducements that ought to arouse the latent energies of the inhabitants of those sections to greater action. Fortunes are laying at their doors that only require a little business tact and well directed energy to be picked up and put in the pockets.

The great leading railroads offer all the facilities that could be reasonably required to transport the stock to market at a reasonable cost and in a short space of time; cash markets too, where no credits are asked; sound banks in which to make deposits, when drafts can be had payable at the home banks without any risk of being robbed by the way.

The inhabitants of those sections can do this to better advantage than others; they are used to the climate, know where and how to procure breeding stock to begin with, and where to locate on the best natural pasture. By thus using the pastures that are every year going to waste, they will not only enrich themselves, but will add greatly to the wealth of the Nation; a combination of self interest and patriotism. [American Stock Journal.

☞ The Rev. Mark Trafton, in his lecture on "The Coming Woman," claims that woman should find open to her all those avenues, and only those avenues for securing a living, into which it was safe and proper for her to enter alone. The coming woman, he said, will inquire not so much "what I can do," as "what a modest respect for the fitness of things permits me to do." The coming woman, he added, will receive equal pay with man for any work which she does equally as well. To the question, "Will the coming woman vote?" he replied: "The Lord only knows. But ought she to vote?" Law is simply the basis of social order. It creates nothing, but only secures safety and peace. The tax woman is required to pay is simply an equivalent for the protection she receives from the law. No injustice is done her, therefore, by withholding the ballot. Mr. Trafton does not believe that if woman engaged actively in politics, they could purify it.

THE COFFEE TRADE.—Brazil is the greatest producer of coffee. That known in trade as Rio is a Brazilian coffee. Of the 713,000,000 pounds produced by the world per annum, Brazil furnishes 400,000,000, or more than half of the whole; Java 140,000,000; Ceylon 40,000,000; St. Domingo 40,000,000; Cuba and Porto Rico 2,500,000; Venezuela 25,000,000; Sumatra 25,000,000; and all others, including the Mocha, 18,000,000. The United States is the greatest consumer. We use in the United States nearly one-third of all the coffee consumed in the world, using nearly seven times as much as Great Britain, with a population not very far from the same. Germany comes next.

☞ Not the least important of the questions which might be discussed by the Ecumenical Council would be that of ordering a new translation of the Bible. The old versions, both that of King James and that made at Douay, are known by scholars to contain numerous interpolations and mistranslations which should, in honesty, be omitted and corrected respectively. The Protestant Enumenical Council might do the same with the Protestant version, and thus, so far as many doctrinal points are concerned, act effectively in aiding the approach of the unity of Chistendom. Good work might also be done by rearranging the chapters of the Old and New Testaments, which have long been known to be out of place, and by dropping the obsolete phraseology and the division into "verses," somewhat after the plan of Sawyer's translation, thus placing the books, as far as possible, in accordance with the language and spirit of modern times. The most orthodox of Biblical critics acknowledge that the versions in use are imperfect in many particulars, and there is no good reason why the two Councils should not remedy this evil. A better opportunity was never offered.—N. Y. World.

THE LOAER.—Here is an accurate description of a class of men who infest every community. The most miserable, hopeless scrap of humanity is an idle man—a man whose chief aim of life is to loaf—to waste in the listless lounging, and mental and physical inaction the years of this short life. There are scores of such beings in every town and city—miserable loafers, whose sole occupation is to avoid employment of any kind—whose lives can scarcely be called lives—who die one after another and leave behind them—what? A vacancy to be mourned? No, for they are in themselves vacancies; not men. To those atoms society owes nothing. The history of the world's progress ignore their names and existence; and being dead, the grave contained no more inert, worthless earth than it did before. They become chronic nuisances as regards their worth or value, and from day to day in the haunts of busy men, they pass as uncurrent funds—at so much discount that they can not even buy themselves. Such are loafers—miserable, worthless beings, who die only when they get too lazy and indolent to use their organs.

RAMSEY'S MISSION—DIPLOMATIC SWINDLING ON A BIG SCALE.—One of the boldest pieces of petty thieving perpetrated under authority from Washington, during the past year, was that involved in Senator Ramsey's mission to Paris, under pretense of negotiating a new postal treaty. The negotiation failed, of course, but Ramsey has had his free trip to Europe, at a cost of some nine thousand dollars in gold. We have had a regular Minister to France all this time, and as he has nothing at all to do, it would certainly have been possible for him to learn that the Imperial Government would not accept the terms Ramsey was sent out to offer—for that knowledge could have been had at any moment for the asking. The whole affair is in the last degree scandalous, and, if so many other Congressmen had not spent the summer in disporting themselves at the people's expense, we should expect that the two Houses would unite in a formal vote of censure upon a proceeding so palpably dishonest. OFFICE OF NATIONAL WATCH CO.,
159 and 161 Lake Street,
CHICAGO, Oct. 12, 1869.

Messrs. Lawshe & Haynes, Atlanta, Ga.: Your letter of Oct. 6th, to Mr. P. S. Bartlett, General Traveling Agent of this Company, wherein you mention that certain statements have been made in your city, detrimental to the character of the Elgin Watches, for Finish and Durability, has been referred to me, and I desire to note briefly, in reply, as follows:

1st. As regards the finish of our movements. Upon this point, your own opinion, with the published testimonials of the most practical and experienced watch makers in the country, and the medals and diplomas that have been awarded to them for "perfect construction and fine finish," at eight different State Fairs, within the past two years, should be conclusive to your customers.

2d. As regards durability. The only possible criticism upon this point is, "that the Watches have been but a short time in market, and, although without doubt, they could not have gained the reputation they have without being more than ordinarily correct time-keepers, and of handsome appearance, it can not be known whether they will last." In reply to this, I have to say: First, that the Watches sold by us two and a half years ago, are in as good condition to-day, where they have had proper usage, as upon the day of their purchase. Second, that the use of machinery in the construction of our movements—and that of a superior kind—enables us to use a harder metal for pinions and wheels, than can be found in other watches not constructed in a similar manner, and secures less friction in the watch train, by the greater exactness and uniformity of machine over hand labor, and we know, and every mechanic knows, that watches made upon our American principle, are superior to and will out-last twice over all others.

3d. To settle the point definitely, you are authorized to say to your customers, that if any watch bearing our trade mark shall, with proper usage, within ten years from date of purchase, wear out so as to become useless to the owner, we will give a new movement, of the same grade, therefor.

Hoping this will meet all objections, and enable you to add to the large sales you have already made of Elgin Watches, I am yours, truly, T. M. AVERY,
President National Watch Co.

Miss Judith Russell, of New Bedford, writes: I have been afflicted with severe prostrating cramps in my limbs, cold feet and hands, and a general disordered system. While visiting some friends in New York, who were using Plantation Bitters, they prevailed upon me to try them. I commenced with a small wine-glass full after each meal. Feeling better by degrees, in a few days I was astonished to find the coldness had entirely left me, and I conld sleep the night through, which I had not done for years. I feel like another being. My appetite and strength have also greatly improved by the use of the Plantation Bitters.

WOLFE'S SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS AS A MEDICINE AND BEVERAGE.—As a general beverage, a necessary corrector of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as Limestone, Sulphate of Copper, etc., the Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. Its purity and exemption from all grossly intoxicating properties, combined with its mildly stimulating and invigorating elements, establish it as the only alcoholic beverage in our country that can be imbibed with pleasure and safety. The nervous torpor and debility which follow the administration of other alcoholic preparations and mixtures of the day, succeeded by their intense and painful nervous reactions, are unknown as the subsequent effects of the Schiedam Schnapps, even when taken so freely; while as a Stomachic, a Tonic Appetiser, it stands pre-eminent among the established curatives of the day.

A public trial of twenty years' duration, in every section of our country, of the Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps; its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have insured for it the reputation of purity and salubrity claimed for it by the proprietor on its original introduction to the public.

Put up in quart and pint bottles, handsomely wrapped in yellow paper.

GLASS SPECTACLES,

Superior to any other in use—constructed in accordance with the science and philosophy of nature, in the peculiar form of

A CONCAVE CONVEX ELLIPSIS,

Admirably adapted to the organs of sight, and perfectly natural to the eye, affording altogether the best artificial help to the human vision ever invented. Used only by

Morris Bernhardt,
SPECTACLE AND OPTICAL
Manufacturer.

THE ADVANTAGES of these Spectacles over all others are:

1. They can be worn with perfect ease for any length of time at one sitting, giving astonishing clearness of vision, by candle or any other artificial light, comfort to the spectacle-wearer hitherto unknown.

2. How to select Glasses. It requires professional guidance even when a good article is offered. Dr. Bernhardt not only has the best Glasses that can be found in the market, but carefully examines the eyes and gives indispensable advice as to the proper selection of them.

3. When the Eyes ache or pain through the action of a bright light, such as is reflected from the snow, sunny weather, white paper, and in reading, writing, sewing, or vivid colored bodies, these lenses, by softening the rays, effect a most agreeable sensation and give great relief.

4. These Spectacles are scientifically adjusted to every case of defective sight with unerring accuracy, whether arising from age, strain, over work, or premature decay, by Morris Bernhardt, on a new and exact principle, entirely his own, which has seldom failed to be correct.

5. After several years of public practice, adjusting spectacles to patients under every aspect of defective vision, as well as experience in an extensive, long established business in his Optical Stores, both here and in Europe, M. Bernhardt considers it a sufficient guarantee of his ability to supply such glasses as are best calculated for the assistance of imperfect sight.

6. M. Bernhardt, to signalize himself from the host of pretenders in his profession, with pride submits for inspection, copies of testimonials he has received from medical gentlemen of the most unquestionable respectability and talent in America; also, a number of certificates from well known gentlemen of distinction who have used his spectacles—the originals of all which he will be happy to show to those who may request it. The use of any of the following names or certificates hereunto affixed, without an actual possession of the same, would be a forgery, a capital offense, punishable by State imprisonment.

Testimony of Recommendations from Medical Gentlemen, Professors of the highest Opthalmic talent in Atlanta, Ga., and in the Union.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 2, 1869.

I have examined carefully and with much interest, a collection of Glasses for the relief of impaired vision, submitted to me by Prof Bernhardt, an Optician. In adaptation to the end proposed, as well as in elegant workmanship, they are very superior, and deserving the patronage of whomsoever may unfortunately require their use. H. V. M. MILLER, M. D.

We fully concur in the above opinion of Dr. Miller. JOHN M. JOHNSON, M. D.
JAS F. ALEXANDER, M. D.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3, 1869

It affords me pleasure to state that I have carefully examined Professor Bernhardt's collection of Glasses for the eyes, and from his explanation of the manner in which he adapts them to imperfect eyes, I am fully satisfied that he thoroughly comprehends the science of Optics, and that he is practically eminently skillful in the adaptation of instruments for the relief of all forms of imperfect vision within the scope of relief without an operation.

I am confirmed, in my own opinion of the Professor's merits of the testimony of the most reliable and promient medical men in various cities in the United States, I most cheerfully commend him to all with whom my opinion may have any weight. J. P. LOGAN, M. D.

Atlanta, Nov. 3, 1869.

We have examined Prof. Bernhardt's beautiful and extensive collection of Glasses for the relief of impaired vision, and believe them to be the best adapted to the ends for which they are intended than any we have ever seen, and further believe that the Professor is an accomplished Optician. D. C. O'KEEFE, M. D.
JAS. M. BARBER, M. D.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3, 1869.

Prof. M. Bernhardt has furnished me with a pair of Concave lens which suit my case exactly. From personal experience I can cordially advise all persons whose natural vision requires the supplements of art to avail themselves of the Professor's skill. He has exhibited to me recommendations from eminent Physicians and Ministers, with many of whom I am personally acquainted. He is evidently an Optician who understands his business.

W. T. BRANTLY,
Pastor 2d Baptist Church.

I most cordially concur in the numerous testimonials I have seen touching the excellency of Dr. Bernhardt as an Optician, and most freely commend those who are in need of aid in his line to apply to him. I do this in some measure from my own experience. I regard Dr. Bernhardt as an accomplished Optician, and a gentleman deserving patronage. JOHN S. WILSON, D. D.,
Pastor 1st Pres. Church, Atlanta, Ga.
Atlanta, Nov. 2, 1869.

I fully concur in the opinion of Rev. J. S. Wilson, D. D., in the above certificate.
W. M. CRUMLY,
Pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, South.
Atlanta, Nov. 3, 1869.

To the above testimonials I cheerfully add my name. R. W. FULLER,
Pastor of 1st Baptist Church, Atlanta.

Nashville, April 27, 1867.

The difference between Dr. Bernardt and most Opticans is, according to my observation, that while they pretend to more than they know, he knows more of his business than he professes.
W. K. BOWLIN, M. D.

Testimonials similar to the above may be seen at M. Bernhardt's office, from the most reliable and well known gentlemen of the United States, among whom are:

HORATIO SEYMOUR, Ex-Governor of N. Y.
R. M. PATTON, Ex-Governor of Alabama.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, NOVEMBER 19.

R. M. ROSE & Co.—Wholesale Dealers in pure Wines and Liquors, Atlanta, Ga.

OUR JOB OFFICE.—With new type, improved presses, and skilled workmen, we are prepared to execute Job Work in a superior manner, at prices sure to suit, at THE CONSTITUTION Job Office. All we ask is a trial.

New Advertisements.— Valuable Mills and Farm for sale—James H. Alexander.
Estray Notice—J. T. Cooper.
Gigs, Buggies, &c.—S. & F. Boylston.
Grand Lodge Good Templars—The Committee.

CORRECT.—There is a man in this city who has been a Mason for over thirty years, and never LAID a brick, or SET on mortar.

GATE CITY BASE BALL CLUB BEATEN.—The Gate City Base Ball Club were beaten yesterday at Macon, by the Savannah Base Ball Club. Score 24 to 27.

BOARD WANTED.—Two young men wish to secure board in a family where their good looks, pious connection and devotion to the fair sex, will be considered as a quid pro quo. Address B. and C., care "ye local," of the Constitution. Families where blondes reside preferred.

COMING TO ATLANTA.—The Columbus Sun states that Rev. Father Culliman, of that city, in obedience to the orders of the Bishop, will remove to Atlanta in a few days. He will be succeeded by Father Kirby of Augusta.

FOR ONE FARE.—Ministers, Lay Delegates and visitors attending the "North Georgia Conference," which will be held at Rome, Ga., on December 8th, 1869, will be passed over the Georgia Road FREE returning, on presenting certificate of attendance, signed by Secretary of Conference.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.—Yesterday morning, H. T. Peake, Superintendent of the South Carolina Railroad, John E. Marley, Esq., Col. James W. Meredith, the "handsomest" man in Augusta, and several other gentlemen connected with that road, passed through here en route for Chattanooga. Our photographers arriving on the spot too late, or the Colonel would have been taken at once. Col. Meredith goes up for the purpose of purchasing Lookout Mountain and removing it to the First Ward.

NOT SWEDENBORGIANS OR UNIVERSALISTS.—Evidently our cotemporaries of the Savannah Advertiser and Brunswick Appeal, do not belong to either the Swedenborgian or Universalist faith. The Advertiser suggested that the merchants of Brunswick buy their groceries at "LITTLE Hell, on the Savannah river," (ready cooked, we presume). The Appeal says that some of the Brunswickers caught the mischief by purchasing at BIG Hell, (Savannah). Well, Savannah did have a sulphurous smell about her once on a time

"THOU ART AN OYSTER MAN."—Dr. Adam Clarke, in his autobiography, speaks of a preacher, whose early education had been neglected, who was stalled when one day in the pulpit, while reading the Lesson, he came across the terrible word "Sennacherib." After several unsuccessful efforts, he at last bridged the chasm, by calling it "Snatcherab."

A case somewhat similar is related of one of the earlier American preachers, whose zeal was not always according to knowledge. He one day took for his text, "Thou art an austere man," which he read, "Thou art an oyster man," and proceeded, we are told to deliver a first-rate sermon upon this bivalvular text.

But not to carry this digression further. We had begun the paragraph, intending to speak of those large and delicious bivalves—the Lynhaven oysters—found at Thompson's Restaurant. They are the finest seen in this market, and for proof of the assertion, just try them.

WEDDING.—On Wednesday night, the Central Presbyterian Church was filled with the élite of Atlanta who assembled to witness the nuptial ceremony of R. C. Clark, Esq., of the well known firm of T. M. & R. C. Clark, Hardware merchants and Miss Mary Lowry, daughter of our esteemed friend, W. M. Lowry, Esq. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. N. Cunningham, of Franklin, Tennessee. His counsel and advice to the newly wedded couple, delivered in a soft, silvery, music-like tone, was truly eloquent and impressive. The attendants were: John A. Fitten, C. W. Henderson, Capt. J. W. Morrow, Capt. J. Williams, Miss Peters, Miss Grant, Miss Floyd, of Madison, and Miss Edwards. The bride appeared the very impersonation of beauty—

"Her eyes, like some fire enshrining gem,
Were stately like the stars, and yet were tender,"
and a face
"Melted into perfect loveliness."

The groom never looked better, and his symmetrical form appeared to full advantage, as the happy couple stood before the hymeneal altar with faces "new lit with love."

We have seldom seen finer looking men, or more charming ladies, than the attendants on the newly wedded couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark left on the 7:30 o'clock train last night, for St. Louis. We wish them a happy honeymoon and a safe return. May the sea of Life over which their barks shall sail be still as crystal, no wave of trouble to disturb its tranquil repose; and the clouds that gather over them, be "amber, rimmed with silver."

A WORD IN BEHALF OF YOUNG MEN.—While we are developing our mineral and agricultural resources, building up manufactures and railroads, multiplying towns and cities, there is another enterprise of more importance than all these taken together. It is the morals, manners and intellectual improvement of our people, especially the morals of our young men. The important period of manhood has been reached by them under great disadvantages; their education generally irregular and defective. Every feeling of patriotism has been crushed, and every principle of justice violated, by public as well as by private authority. Court houses have been closed, and military satraps have tyrannized over an oppressed people, at will. Penury has shut the school house door to thousands. Ecclesiastical organizations have been broken up, and the Ministers of the Sanctuary have been driven to secular pursuits for their bread, and where the Word of Life has been preached regularly, Sabbath after Sabbath, many, on account of the uncomeliness of their dress, have been ashamed to appear in company.

Amidst all these unfriendly surroundings, alas, how rapidly downward, has been the course of poor fallen humanity. Every evil passion has been strongly appealed to; while ignorance has veiled the future—the awful future with its inevitable retributions. Bar rooms and gambling dens, have been places of general resort. It has been common with thousands to carry their deadly weapons as to wear their daily clothing. Under such untoward circumstances, how low has been the price put upon human life. Where is the paper that does not convey to its readers the news of some shocking murder? Most usually, these occurrences take place while the parties are under the influence of intoxicating drinks and armed. The frequency of these occurrences calls aloud to every philanthropist to arouse himself and use his influence to check them. Will not men of mature years set our youth the example of going about their daily avocations without fire arms, and abstain from the glass? Instead of attempting to enforce the law against carrying concealed weapons, get public conduct right on the subject. Teach young men by example, which is more forcible, than precept. Our candid opinion is, that many a young man has been led, while under the influence of liquor, and the impulses of the moment, to slay his fellow-man, which has caused them much sorrow all their life. We would save the young men of the land from these rash acts, and their consequences; from the effects of evil associations, and elevate them physically, mentally and morally.

A CARD.—Mr. Editor: I was not a little surprised at the tone of your editorial of the 16th inst., with reference to the state of affairs now existing in regard to the present canvass for the Mayoralty of the city. So far as I am concerned, I do not consider myself responsible for the difficulties. I was not the cause of breaking up the Convention, or balloting, which was agreed upon for the purpose of harmonizing the party, and when it terminated as it did, I did not suppose any one would consider its action binding, or that any one by its action was constituted the nominee of the party, and upon publishing the result, it was expressly stated in your paper that it could not be considered as an expression of the will of the party, and for that reason, I suppose, you failed to publish any one as the nominee. To prove that I have not been disposed to be stubborn or contrary about this matter, I stated to gentlemen who were endeavoring to harmonize the conflicting interest, that I was willing to submit it to the people of the different Wards, to be decided at Ward meetings, or to delegates to be chosen by the citizens in each Ward, which propositions were not accepted. Now, to show that I am not disposed to be a disorganizer, I renew said propositions, and pledge myself to abide the result. I can not, however, subscribe to the doctrine advanced by the Rome Courier, that caucuses must be adhered to, whether made fairly or not, much less when the balloting has been broken up, and all the candidates but one withdrawn from the contest.

Very respectfully,
WILLIAM EZZARD.

A NEW METHODIST PAPER.—In the Virginia Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Richmond, Va., on Friday last, says the Dispatch of that city, Rev. Dr. Thos. E. Bond, of Baltimore, announced to the Conference that it was the intention of himself and Rev. Jas. G. Holland to commence, on the 1st of January, 1869, the publication of a religious paper, to be called the Baltimore Methodist Advocate. He proceeded at some length to set forth in humorous remarks the claims of the new paper, and announced that the first (January) number would be issued early in December.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR.—We have often read in the newspapers of the grand success of medical compounds put up at the North and elsewhere. Many of these medicines have had their day, and we hear no more of them. Their proprietors have made fortunes, not so much from the curative powers and virtues of their mixtures, as from the notoriety given them by advertising, by which people were made to believe all the good that was said of them. A preparation is now before the public which is becoming very popular, and is known as Bradfield's Female Regulator, put up by L. H. Bradfield & Co., of Atlanta. Such is it curative virtues, that it has gained wide spread popularity all over the country where it has been made known, and it is being introduced everywhere. We are informed that immense quantities of this medicine is being sold in all sections of the South and Southwest, especially in the city of New Orleans and in Texas.

This much we say in justice to its proprietors, who are gentlemen of integrity, who would not engage in the manufacture and sale of a humbug.—La Grange Reporter. nov7dtf

Notice to the Public.

THE statement made by one David Lehman, in a communication to THE CONSTITUTION and Griffin Star, that Ruth, Fehrman & Co., of Sidney Nurseries, at Yellow Springs, Ohio, were nothing but "Tree Speculators," and that he saw them pack "thousands of seedlings last fall, and deliver them to the Southern people for good trees," we pronounce to be untrue in every respect. We employed said Lehman as an agent, and he made an extortionate charge for walking, after refusing a horse we authorized him to use. In revenge for a refusal to pay this charge, he has tried to injure our business. We will deliver all the trees sold by us, at Eatonton on the 11th, Jonesboro 12th, Atlanta 15th, Newnan 16th, Griffin 18th, Hogansville 18th, LaGrange 22d, Barnesville 22d, Forsyth 25th, West Point 25th, and Crawford Station 27th.

A letter from Gen. Bushrod Johnson, of Tennessee, states that he purchased Fruit Tress from us in the Fall of 1868, (the case referred to by Lehman,) and they are "of excellent quality, have grown successfully and given entire satisfaction." We are willing that all our trees shall be examined by experience Nurseryman.

DR. J. BRADFIELD'S

FEMALE REGULATOR,

Woman's Best Friend

THIS valuable Medicine is prepared for WOMEN exclusively, and to be used by WOMEN only. It is adapted especially to those cases where the WOMB is disordered, and will cure any irregularity in the "menses," except in such cases as require a surgical operation. As these last are very rare, the FEMALE REGULATOR is of almost universal application. In a sudden check of the "monthly courses" from COLD, trouble of mind or like cause, it acts like a charm, by RESTORING THE DISCHARGE IN EVERY INSTANCE, thus relieving the fever, headache, pain in the small of the back and "lower stomach," flushes of heat about the face, chilly sensations, burning of the eyelids and general restlessness. Taken in time, all these symptoms pass away immediately, without injury to the constitution. Frequently, however, the proper remedy is not applied in time, the disease becomes chronic, and the foundation laid for numberless evils to the constitution of the woman. The next "turn" comes around and there is no "show," or perhaps the "whites" will appear. There will be some uneasiness about the womb, but very little or none of the natural fluid escaping. The complexion becomes sallow, bowels, swollen, a sort of greenish caste about the face, constant dull aching pains in the head, weight in the lower stomach and back, with or without whites, palpitations of the heart, pallor, exhaustion, indigestion, weariness, langour, aching across the loins, loss of appetite, pain in left breast, tightness across the chest, cough and giddiness. If still allowed to go on, "green sickness" will be fully developed—the headache becomes severe, with loss of memory, diminishing sensibility, SICK STOMACH, dyspepsia no relish for food, loss of flesh, increased fluttering of the heart SWELLING OF THE FEET, legs and body and occasional spitting of blood. The slightest effort causes HURRIED BREATHING, almost SUFFOCATION. The skin is flabby and a "doughy feel." This is a sad picture, but it is the condition of thousands of women between the ages of 15 and 45, who are brought to the verge of the grave by ignorance or neglect to take the proper remedy. To all who are afflicted with any of the symptoms above mentioned, in connection with an irregularity of the "monthly sickness," we earnestly say TAKE DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR. A few ounces taken, you will at once experience its benefits, and with a little patience you will be fully restored to health.

This remedy has been extensively used for upwards of twenty years by many of the most experienced and successful Physicians of Georgia. We repeat, that Dr. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR is prepared for WOMEN and to be used by Women only.

A trial is all we ask.

Prepared and sold in any quantity, by

Price, $1.50 per Bottle.

☞ Sold by Druggists generally.

ATLANTA, Ga., December 29th, 1868.

Dr. J. BRADFIELD—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in stating that some time previous to the late war, I used, with the utmost success, on a servant girl, your FEMALE REGULATOR, prepared then at Bradfield's Drug Store, West Point, Ga. She had been suffering severely from suppressed menstruation, and this Medicine soon restored her to health. She is, to-day, living in Atlanta, sound and well

I will state, further, that I know of its being used, with equal success, on a servant girl of my brother-in law, Professor Rutherford, of Athens, Ga. This woman had, I think, been diseased for six years. She was a house servant, and seemed cured, up to the time of "freedom," I do not hesitate to indorse your preparation for the purposes for which you recommend it.
Yours truly, JNO. C. WHITNER.

STATE OF GEORGIA, TROUP COUNTY.

This is to certify that I have examined the recipe of Dr. Joseph Bradfield, of this county, and, as a medical man, pronounce it to be a combination of Medicines of great merit in the treatment of all the diseases of females for which he recommends it. WM. P. BEASLEY, M. D.
This December 21st, 1868.

MOUNTVILLE, 1868.

DR. J. BRADFIELD—Dear Sir: I have much pleasure in saying I have witnessed the most decided and happy effects of your Female Regulator in this neighborhood. WM. H. FINCHEN.

MOUNTVILLE, 1868.

Dr. J. BRADFIELD—Dear Sir: I have repeatedly used, in my family, your Female Regulator, and have, in every case, met with complete success.
G. L. DAVIS.

☞ I also prepare, and have for sale, a YEAST POWDER, equal to the best, and for much less price.

☞ I also prepare a LIQUID BLUING, now in use by many of the best house keepers in the city, and pronounced by them to be very superior.

The North American

MUTUAL

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

OF NEW YORK.

ASSETTS, - - - $5,000,000

PREMIUMS ALL CASH.

DIVIDENDS Yearly, and paid in Cash. All Policies Registered and Guaranteed by State Department, and presents more favorable terms for Insurance than any other Company in the UNITED STATES.

ALL OUR LIFE AND ENDOWMENT POLICIES

Are Non-Forfeitable.

Thirty days grace allowed on any renewal payment, and the Policy held good.

No restriction on travel in the United States or any part of North America, north of the Southern Cape of Florida, or in Europe at any season of the year.

All Policies registered in the Insurance Department free of cost.

This makes every Policy as secure to the holder as a National Bank Note, or United States Bond.

Dividends, Freedom from Restrictions, Non-forfeiture, and a few other of the modern features of Life Insurance, are desirable concomitants, but they are all minor considerations in comparison with security.

Be convinced first that your investments are being placed beyond the chance of loss.

The Registry system offers absolute safety. With the issue of the Policy the accumulation begins. On the day the first premium is paid by the insured, the State of New York, pencil in hand, circulates the exact cent of the reserve, subtracts it from the gross premium, and, having paid the balance to the Company, places this portion in the Government vaults, and turns on it the keys of power. There it will remain, until death unlocks those ponderous doors, and liberates it from its silent prison, to console and bless those for whom it was designed. Year by year, as additional premiums are paid, the official fingers are set at work, and additional contributions go to swell the original neucleus. These, working together with the lapse of time, like the coral reef, become still larger through the marvelous machinery of compound interest.

If there be strife in the Company, it never passes those second portals. If there be peculation or fraud, it never breaks through these iron guards. The Company may fail, its officers may flee, bearing with them whatever plunder they may be able to secure. Its office may be invaded by burglars, or burned by conflagration, but the widow's and orphan's little duposit, guarded by the Parent Commonwealth, and beyond the reach of the results of crime, latent weakness or disaster, remains unharmed amidst them all. WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Fiddle taddle! what's the use?
You can't make her a man;
The great Creator fashioned her
On quite another plan.
Man's joints are strong and firmly knit,
His thews and sinews tough:
But woman is of dantier mold,
And formed of finer stuff.

Men are the prose—the timber half
Of this sad world of ours,
And women are the poetry,
The sweet fern and the flowers.
Throughout the blessed Book this thought
Runs beautifully and clear,
That woman lives to sanctify,
To grace and to endear.

Don't let her, then, be smutched and soiled
By mingling in the fray,
But keep her free from grosser acts
To win her own sweet way:
Let purity remain her shield,
Without a blot or stain,
To guard her mental bloom from taint
Or touch of hand profane.

Forbid it, Heaven! Forbid it, Fate!
Forbid it, men of sense,
That she herself should aid the plot
To shame her own defense.
She is all glorious as she is—
Why should the fretting few
Conspire to banish from her soul
The fragrance and the dew?

Why take away her chiefest charm—
The crown that's hers by right—
The quiet influence that compels
Proud man to own her right?
She knows her power—why can't the sex
Remain contented, then,
To rule us in the good old way?
Lord love us all—Amen!

Radicals Afraid of the Negroes.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, writing about the Texas election, lets out as follows:

"Considerable anxiety is manifested over the negro vote, not so much upon the grounds of the unreliability of this class, as their remarkable credulity, combined with ignorance. The negroes as a class, are universally with the Republicans; but the fears are that they will be duped by the emissaries of the opposition. A stampede of the African vote at the last moment would have a most damaging, if not fatal, effect. One of the first efforts of the Republicans in their management of the campaign will be to watch and keep the negro element well on hand. It is now five weeks until the election, and much remains to be done before the State can be considered in any manner safe."

"Now," says the Mobile Advertiser, "we wish all the people who are classed here as the 'negro vote,' were able to read the foregoing, to show how completely the Radical party is at their mercy. There is no doubt that a 'stampede of the African vote' (not only in Texas, but Alabama and every where else in the South) 'would have a most damaging, if not fatal, effect.' The truth is, it would lay the Radical party out cold. The moral we would draw from it is, that the Radical negroes are like an elephant that is led about by a man who is a pigmy in strength compared to him, simply because he does not know his strength. The negroes are the real power in the Radical party, and instead of their belonging to the Radicals, as they now do, body and soul, the Radicals ought to belong to the negroes. When the latter finds this out, they will demand their rights, or throw off the Yankee C. B. yoke they wear like so many dumb cattle. And further, when they find it out, they will have attained to sense enough to know that it is to their interest to go with the people of the South, and not with the people of Massachusetts."

George Peabody, just before his death, gave another £150,000 to the Peabody Fund in aid of the London poor.

FRESH TESTIMONIALS!

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID!

THE ASTONISHING

Family Medicine!!!

Saved from Death---Read!

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 28, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & CO., 161 William street, New York—Gents: Yours, of the 23d, is before me and has attention. It gives me pleasure to say, that my belief is, that your "Fluid," under the supervision of a kind Providence, saved the life of my youngest child, some six years ago. The child being wasted to a skeleton, by the effects of teething, and an affection of the bowels therewith. I had never seen any one reduced so low to recover.

"Physic" had been tried in vain, until the Physicians stated it was useless. A friend recommended your "Fluid," or ozone, which he stated was one of the component parts of it. I did so, and the effect was like magic, plainly discernable in one hour, in its good effects, producing quiet and sleep almost at once, where irritation and sleepless restlessness had previously possessed the child to nearly entire exhaustion.

I at first administered it in a small way, 2 and 3 drops in a spoonful of water, and increased it to 6 and 10 drops. It completely checked the bowels, and had the happiest effect, the child rapidly recovering.

I have tried your "Fluid," on animals, with the same effect; both horses and cows, mingling more or less in water, and letting them drink.

I have no hesitation in saying, I believe it a specific for Chronic Diarrhœa, or any violent affection of the bowels.

I would not be without it in my family, under any consideration.

Yours, truly, WILLIAM FOWLER.

Mr. Fowler is a member of the celebrated Banking House of Fowler & Somerville, Montgomery, Alabama.

AND AGAIN!

Read the following letter from Mr. Frank Saunders, a well-known citizen, and brother-in-law of the beloved Bishop Paine, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

189 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, July 29, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & CO., 161 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK—Gents: About the 10th of June last, one of my children was taken with Scarlet Fever, in its most malignant form, and as soon as I could I procured your valuable disinfectant, "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid." Although it was several days after the appearance of the disease before I began using the Fluid, still, by a free use of it, the disease was not only confined to the one case, but the malignity of that case somewhat mitigated.

During the use of the Fluid, as a disinfectant, in my family it was also, tried in a case of headache, and one of toothache, the results in each case being instantaneous relief. It was afterwards tried in a case of Erysipelas, with almost equal success.

It is due to the merits of this compound, also, to state, that the case of Erysipelas in question, being located in the feet, the Fluid, in its application, was brought in frequent contact with a troublesome corn, on one of the feet, to the utter discomfiture of said corn; for, upon subsequent examination, it had disappeared, and though it was sought for diligently, it could not be found.

I hand you this, hoping it may be the means of inducing others of earth's poor sufferers, to test for themselves, as I did, the great merits of this great remedy.

Very respectfully yours,
FRANK SAUNDERS.

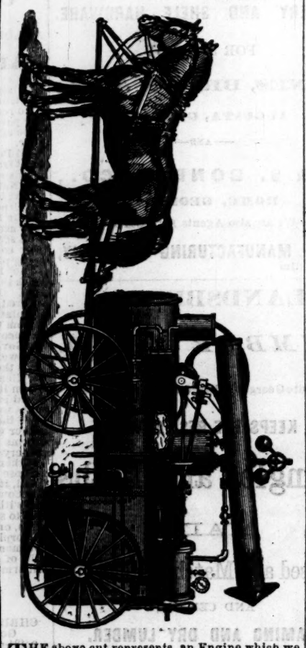

Never was a medicine so universally esteemed and extolled. It never fails. It may be depended on.

PORTABLE STEAM ENGINE!

THE above cut represents an Engine which we build especially for Plantation purposes, such as Threshing Grain, Ginning Cotton, Sawing Wood and Shingles, Pumping Water, etc.

For indoor work we make them on strong legs, without wheels. Mr. A. F. Wooley, of Kingston, Ga., purchased one of us, on wheels, during the past season. Below will be found what he says in regard to it. Persons interested in Steam Power will please address us for Circulars.

A. N. WOOD & CO.,
Eaton, Madison county, New York.

KINGSTON, GA., July 20, 1869.

MESSRS. A. N. WOOD & CO., EATON, N. Y.—Gents: I have given the Engine which I purchased of you a thorough test, and must say that it is the best piece of machinery that I ever had any thing to do with. It is just the thing I wanted and what every other farmer needs and ought to have, I never knew anything about an engine before; but I put this together and run it successfully, and could not do without it now. I intend using it for everything that a farmer needs power. I can recommend your Engines to all those who are wanting a good, reliable power; but must say that your Engines recommend themselves better than I can do. Use this in any way you think best. "THE UTLEY COTTON PRESS."

A new invention of power whereby all friction is overcome. The simplicity, economy and durability of this Press astonishes all who see it, and the more so, that a power so simple should so long have been unappropriated. The strain is wholly upon two (2) Iron Bars 1¾ inches square, operating on these bars as if two men were pulling at each end in contrary direction, which will sustain a strain of 190,000 pounds each. With this Press two men can do all the packing or pressing of a 500 pound bale inside of eight minutes, and if need be, one man can operate, only requiring more time. This Press will not occupy more space than a Piano, and can be placed under the Gin and receive the Cotton direct from the Gin, thus doing away with Lint Rooms, and can be readily taken down and transported as it is simple and light. We can supply these Presses cheaper than any yet offered. Will send circulars to any desiring, and would advise all wanting Presses to withhold buying until they examine this. We will, at an early day, have one on exhibition in Atlanta, when it can be seen.

Press complete $175; Irons complete $125.

These presses are now being manufactured in Atlanta, Columbus, Augusta and Macon, and 1 important points throughout the State, where its workings can be seen. All are assured that as between this Press and any other, there is no argument as to its merits over all others. With the Irons any ordinary workman can put up the Press. ☞ County Rights, Presses, or Irons for sale by

R. P. GLENN, Agent,
At Glenn, Wright & Carr's, Warehouse, Atlanta, Ga.

R. P. GLENN, ESQ.—Dear Sir: I am so much pleased with the style, make and operation of the Utley Cotton Press, that I have concluded to order one of them from you for my plantation on the Mississippi River.

I do this, notwithstanding I have on my place a large and superior 10 inch Iron Screw Press, which cost upwards of $300 before the war. Believing that the saving of time and space, to say nothing of its superior baling qualities, and by reason of its great power, will more than repay its cost over the one now in use. I do not hesitate to recommend this Press to all who may require one.

Very Respectfully,
A. J. HOLMES.
Atlanta, Ga.

R. P. GLENN, ESQ—Dear Sir: Having witnessed the operation of the "Utley Cotton Press," the great power exerted at the cost of so little labor which is performed by hand, and the small amount of room it occupies I feel satisfied that it is as good, if not the best arrangement for baling cotton that has come under my observation, and do do not hesitate in recommending it to those needing a Press.

Very respectfully,
C. H. STRONG, of McDaniel & Strong, Warehouse and Cotton Factors, Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, GA., August 31, 1869.

R. P. GLENN, ESQ: We have examined very carefully the "Utley" Cotton and Hay Press, as manufactured by you, and are perfectly satisfied it is greatly superior to any other Press now in use. It is simple in its construction, can be readily taken down and moved to where your Cotton or Hay may be, and as readily put up again. There is nothing about it that can get out of order, that a farmer can not himself repair. We have seen it tested and know that one strong man can press a bale much smaller than four mules can on any other Press we ever saw. One advantage is, it occupies so little space that it can be placed close to the Lint room, or even in it, and save extra haulling of cotton.

Very respectfully,
H. MARSHALL, Fulton County Agricultural Society.
MARK W. JOHNSON, Guano Merchant.

We, the under igned, having witnessed the operations of the Utley Cotton Press, at the Warehouse of Glenn, Wright & Carr, must say that it is the most simple and powerful we have witnessed. With the qualities are economized economy in space and labor. Mr. R. P. Glenn, the Agent, exemplified fully that one man can more in this Press than can be done by four mules on any other. We have no hesitancy in recommending this Press to the farmers of Georgia, or in giving it as our opinion that the Utley Press supplies a desideratum long needed.

MR. R. P. GLENN: Jordan arrived, with the Utley Cotton Press, by last evening's train, and put it up to-day. A great many went to see it, and looked at its performances with astonishment. They try to criticise it, but can't pick a flaw in it. They see its great power—yet nothing is strained. Its great simplicity astonishes. All who have bought Screw presses regret it, and I think many will throw them away and buy the Utley Press. I will at once close contracts for wood works. So send on Irons early as possible.
Respectfully
R. B. GUNBY.

ROME GA., September 8, 1869.

MR. R. P. GLENN: Yours of the 5th received. I am more and more pleased with the Utley Press. As I wrote you, my first bale of rags weighed 900 lbs. The next days (Friday and Saturday,) with two men, I packed 16 bales weighing 700 lbs. Now, I would not, for any consideration, exchange this Press for any other—indeed, I could not get along without it. All who see it are delighted with it. I am now packing my lint cotton with it.
J. J. COHEN.

GRIFFIN, GA., September 15, 1869.

MR. R. P. GLENN: Mr. Rus P. Johnson delivered us the Utley Press yesterday, when we at once put it up in our warehouse, and packed one bale weighing 478 lbs. This morning we packed another bale weighing 545 lbs. each, with only two men—one good man could have done it by himself. Many planters were to see it; all were delighted with it; and two of our largest (Mr. Manly and Mr. Prichard) say they will sell—one an Alexander Press, and other a most improved Screw for $50, being one-third of their cost—and buy the Utley Press. This, sir, is the Press for the planter—it is so convenient, powerful and simple, and is so easily taken down and put up.
We chearfully subscribe to the above.

CORN!

PROLIFIC CORN!

I have a species of Corn which I obtained from a man in Virginia some two years ago. This man and his Corn have been denounced as humbugs. I am not able to say whether the seed I obtained is the "Egyptain Corn" or not, but I do know from having grown it twice, that it is by far the most valuable species of Corn ever planted in this country. I am well satisfied that two crops of this Corn can be produced in the same year in this climate, and I know that on the same land, with the same seasons and culture, it will yield three times as much as any other kind of corn of which I have any knowledge. I have planted it for two years, and have realized large crops, literally without rain. In this exceedingly dry year, if all the farmers of Bartow County had planted this corn, we would have been worth a million of dollars more than we are, and the people would have rejoiced in abundance of bread. I have some of this Corn for sale, and will dispose of it to those who wish to purchase at $6 a peck, delivered to the Railroad Agent at Kingston, Ga.

This Corn can be grown and gathered in this climate by the 15th of August, which gives far more ample time to prepare for and sow wheat, or other small grain on the same land. All orders to receive attention must be accompanied with the money, prepaid. I do not wish to sell less than one peck to any one order. Address me at Kingston, Ga.
Sept. 28, 1869. J. C. ROPER, Kingston, Ga.

We the undersigned citizens of Bartow county, do certify, that we visited the plantation of J. C. Roper about the 1st of August, 1869, and examined his field planted in the kind of Corn mentioned and described in his foregoing statement, and said field looked fresh and luxuriant, whilst the fields around and adjacent, seemed literally burned up with the drought. We are satisfied that Capt. Roper's statement about the Corn is true, and the undersigned, Lewis Tumlin, has already secured from him, seed to plant a large part of his crop the coming year. We counted twenty-three ears of corn produced from three grains this dry year. In our judgment, it is by far the most valuable Corn ever introduced into this country.
L. TUMLIN, Cartersville, Ga.
MARK A. HARDIN, Kingston, Ga.
Sept. 28, 1869.

Capt. J. C. Roper, of Kingston, Ga., gave me a few ears of Corn, which I planted on a piece of gray upland. The land was very well prepared, and pretty well matured, and the Corn planted the 7th day of April, 1869. I know, that from the time the Corn was waist high, until it was well glazed in the grain, there never was a "season" of rain upon it, and yet was green and fresh until maturity, and did not seem to suffer from drought. The yield was extraordinary and the Corn attracted the attention of almost every passer by. I am no farmer, and had of course but a small plat of ground planted in this Corn, but if my judgment is worth anything, I can say, that if I had planted this Corn altogether, I would have made, in this dry year, three or four times as much Corn as I did.
